Civilian Conservation Corps - Company 2391

Many residents of Appomattox County will remember the scene in the picture above. It shows the camp of the Civilian Conservation Corps, (CCC Camp) Company 2391 located in Appomattox and the picture was taken in 1939 just a few years before it was torn down.
The C.C.C. was established during the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt at the time of the depression. Many young men had the ability to work but jobs were impossible to find so the government established the Corps and trained men for work in various capacities. They received room, board and a small pay check and in return they contributed valuable services to the community.
This picture was found in an attic by Paul Gunter of Route 3, Appomattox and was brought in for the TIMES-VIRGINIAN to use. We feel this will bring back memories, good and bad, for a number of our citizens.
At the beginning of World War II, the C.C.C. camp was torn down as most of the men went into the service.

Car-Rail Crash Fatal To Woman

Pamplin - Dorothy Spencer Wright, Rt. 2, Pamplin, was killed instantly Monday at 6:50 a.m. when the automobile she was driving was struck by a Norfolk and Western Railway train about two miles east of Pamplin.
